INTEREST IN SMOKER INTENSE

Replies Are Received Daily That Republicans Are Coming From Four Corners of State.

LOVE FEAST TUESDAY NIGHT

Delegations Are Being Formed in Cities All Over Central Indiana to Move on Rushville.

PLANS OF ENTERTAINMENT

All of Noted Party Workers in State Indicate They Will be Here—Special Trains.

At the meeting this morning of the committee on arrangements for the Republican love feast and smoker which will be held in the coliseum next Tuesday evening and which it is estimated at least two thousand or more from over the State will attend, plans were laid for the entertainment of many guests which will be in the city and other details of the proposed meeting were disposed of.

It was the consensus of opinion at the committee meeting that more than two thousand Republicans will be here, providing the weather conditions are good. It is thought that inclement weather might keep many Rush county people and a few in adjoining counties away but the majority of the men who are coming from distant points will not be deterred by bad weather.

That the love feast is assuming Statewide proportions there is no doubt. This is evidenced by the interest which is being evidenced by the prominent Republicans of Indiana. That they are interested is certain from the number of replies which are being received almost hourly that more are coming.

A partial list of some of the noted Republicans who will be here has been prepared as follows:

James S. Sherman, Vice-President, of Utica, N. Y.; Joseph G. Cannon, Ex-speaker and member of Congress of Danville, Ill.; James A. Hemenway, Ex-senator, of Boonville; Edgar D. Crumpacker, Valparaiso, only Republican from Indiana in Congress; Harry A. New, Indianapolis, National Republican Committeeman; Charles W. Miller, Indianapolis, United States District Attorney; James P. Goodrich, Winchester, ex-chairman Republican State committee; Edwin M. Lee, Lawrenceburg, chairman Republican State committee; Frank B. Posey, Evansville, ex-congressman and candidate for congress of Twelfth district last year; Owen N. Heaton, judge superior court, Fort Wayne, and candidate for congress in the Twelfth district last year; Leander J. Monks, Supreme judge at Winchester; Quincy A. Myers, Supreme judge at Logansport; David A. Myers, appellate judge at Greensburg; Ward H. Watson, ex-appellate judge at Charlestown; W. J. Henley, ex-appellate judge at Indianapolis; Oscar E. Bland, State senator and candidate for congress in Second district; Will H. Hays, of Sullivan, member State Central committee of Second district; George W. Cromes of Muncie, ex-congressman of the Eighth district; Fred A. Sims of Frankfort, ex-secretary of State and member of State tax commission; John F. McClure, Anderson, ex-judge and member railroad commission; John C. Billheimer, Indianapolis, ex-State auditor; Oscar H. Hadley, Plainfield, ex-State treasurer; Otis E. Gully, Danville, candidate for sec-

BAND WILL GO ON 'JOY RIDE'

Arrangements Are Made to Take Musicians With Booster Brigade.

The city band will go to Milroy on the "joy ride" tonight to attend the fall festival which began there today. The booster brigade began to assume immense proportions today, when automobile owners came forward and said that they would go to Milroy and carry some extra passengers. Enough machines have been provided for the local band to go and will furnish music free of charge. The machines will be decorated in light green and white, the horse show colors, and a big time is anticipated.

SEARCHING FOR OWNER OF QUILT

Connersville Police Believe That May Lead to Identity of Rush County Horse Thief.

LOCAL POLICE ARE NOTIFIED

It has been learned here that the unknown thief who stole a horse and buggy from Cyrus Lindel, in Rush county, several nights ago, left a new patchwork quilt hanging over a gate post in the barn yard, in Rush county whence he drove the stolen horse and vehicle, says the Connersville News. It will be remembered that the horse and buggy were found in East Connersville early the following morning and were claimed and taken away by the owner.

The quilt was nearly new, and the owner so far as is known, has not been located. As a clue to the identity of the man it may be valuable and the police of Rushville are at work on the case. It leads to the belief, in the minds of many, that the unknown thief had stolen a quantity of goods somewhere, and took the horse and buggy to facilitate his escape.

CIRCULATE PAPER
AMONG LOT OWNERS

Will Petition Council to Take in the Stewart & Tompkins Addition to Belmont.

AND GIVE FACTORY WATER

A petition is being circulated among the owners of lots in the Stewart & Tompkins addition to Belmont asking that the city council annex the territory and give the factory fire protection regardless of the conditions of the streets. The petition is being signed freely by the property owners and will probably be presented to the council at the special meeting Friday night. The proposition of circulating a petition on this question was thought of once before but was never put in force. Since a large number of the lots have changed hands since the original sale it is rather difficult to locate the real owners but they hope to have enough names to present it to the council tomorrow night.

WEATHER.

Rain tonight and Friday slightly warmer.

Mrs. Ed Geraghty is recovering from a several days' illness.

DEFER ACTION
UNTIL FRIDAY

City Council Hears Citizens Committee on Question of Water For Fire Protection For Factory.

ADDITION ENTERS DISCUSSION

Gates Sexton Presents the Matter to City Fathers as a Business Proposition.

The city council deferred action last night on giving water to the Rushville Furniture Company until Friday night. Such was the decision reached after hearing the citizens committee from the Merchants Association and an hour and half session as a committee of the whole. About fifteen members of the citizens committee waited upon the council in an effort to obtain water for fire protection for the new factory, but before the meeting ended all trace of the question was lost and the discussion drifted back to the lot sale and a remedy for straightening out the streets.

Gates Sexton as chairman of the committee, addressed the council and pointed out the advantage, as a business proposition to the people of Rushville to have the new factory. "Without fire protection, think gentlemen, what it means to these men who have erected this beautiful factory at an investment of between sixty and sixty-five thousand dollars," said Mr. Sexton.

Continuing he said, "this factory will employ between 100 and 150 men. It is not the largest factory in the world, but experts tell us it is a model factory. Rushville has six institutions paying taxes on a valuation of $300,000. Of this amount the city gets $3,000 and the county, $10,000 in taxes. Now this $3,000 that the city gets does not amount to a thing compared to the employment given to 450 men and the $4,300 they spend here every week. It is a good business proposition to give this factory fire protection so they can run for by employing 100 or 150 men it means that an additional $1,500 will be spent here each week."

Mr. Sexton pointed out the fact that New Castle had kept the Maxwell people outside of the city limits an still gave them fire protection. "You men are working for the good of Rushville and it is to your interests as well as everyone, from a business standpoint to give these people fire protection and I hope, gentlemen, you will look at it in this light," said Mr. Sexton in closing.

B. F. Miller, a member of the committee, was the next to address the council. Mr. Miller said he understood that it was the spirit of the law that when an addition was to be annexed to a city it must conform with the city and the stand that the council had maintained was well taken, but since Rushville has a beautiful new factory, he did not believe fire protection should be denied it and it should not be held out. He stated that in his opinion everyone concerned should bend a little in an effort to give the factory fire protection and hoped the council would make satisfactory arrangements.

Herbert C. Flint stated that the factory needed fire protection as the insurance rates would be ruinous without it and in fact no insurance company would care to take it without fire protection. He said that the addition could not be changed as it was too late to think of that and as the factory needed fire protection he hoped that they would act favorably on the matter.

F. E. Wolcott thanked the council for considering the matter with the citizens committee. He stated that

UNNECESSARY TO OBSERVE THE DAY

Thomas Honan, Attorney General, Holds That Act of 1911 is Invalid.

SCHOOLS NOT TO CELEBRATE

Discovery Day, October 12, Will Not be Observed in This State—Banks Not to be Closed.

Principally because the act passed by the 1911 Legislature, designating October 12 as Discovery day is believed to be invalid, there will be no general celebration of the day in Indiana, according to State officials. The law was introduced in assembly by John J. Keegan of Indianapolis, acting for the Knights of Columbus of the State. Lodges of that order in all parts of the State already have made elaborate preparations for the celebration of the day, but the public schools and other institutions will not regard the day as a legal holiday.

The law was passed in the form of an amendment to a legal holiday act, passed in 1905. It was found subsequently that another amendment to the 1905 act had been passed in 1907 amending the same section of the 1905 act that the 1911 act sought to amend. The 1907 amendment added Lincoln's birthday, February 12, to the list of legal holidays. The 1911 law, using the 1905 statute as the basis of its amendment, eliminated Lincoln's birthday from the list of holidays, but incorporated Discovery day.

Thomas M. Honan, attorney general, though never having been called upon for an official opinion as to the validity of the act, asserted yesterday that as the 1911 law stands on the State books, it is invalid, since it seeks to amend the 1905 statute, which ceases to exist, by implication, when it was amended by the 1907 Legislature.

Governor Marshall, according to information from his office, will not issue a proclamation declaring the day a legal holiday, though he has not gone into the question of the validity of the statute.

Charles A. Greathouse, State superintendent of public instruction, said that there would be no notice of the day sent out to the school officials of the State from his office. The schools of Indiana already are overburdened with holidays, he said, and he asserted that he would not like to see another added.

"The routine of the school work is broken into enough," he said "and we do not feel that we can allow any further encroachments upon the time of the teachers or pupils."

The Indianapolis Clearing House Association has obtained an opinion from its attorneys that Discovery day is not a legal holiday and the banks, therefore, will not be closed.

OLD MEMBERS TO ATTEND

Will be Taken to Masonic Temple in Automobiles.

Phoenix Lodge F. and A. M. will have an afternoon and night meeting tomorrow at which time all three degrees will be conferred. A banquet will be served at 6:30 o'clock and following the annual custom it is planned to have all the older members present. They will be brought to and from the Masonic Temple in automobiles. After the banquet the third degree will be conferred by the Past Masters of the lodge.

NETS GOOD PROFIT IN SALE

Sheridan Daubenspeck Sells 3,000 Shares of Stock After 10 Years.

Sheridan Daubenspeck yesterday sold three thousand shares of stock in the Southwestern Land & Irrigation Company to R. H. Hotten of Kansas City, Mo., and netted a good profit for himself. He purchased the stock about ten years ago and has held it until a buyer who would pay the price appeared. He was paid $105 a share for it. The stock has increased in value since he purchased it.

POSTMASTER GETS
MANY REQUESTS

Indianapolis Residents Write Here Inquiring After Farmers Who Will Sell Apples.

PRICES THERE, PROHIBITIVE

R. B. Smelser of near Glenwood is not the only one who is receiving letters from Indianapolis residents asking for the prices of apples. Postmaster Charles Frazee receives an average of one letter a day, in which the writer makes inquiry about apples and asks that the name of a farmer or farmer be referred to him where he can purchase apples. The visit of Mr. Smelser to Indianapolis recently, which was given some prominence in the Indianapolis News, when the commission men refused to buy of him, evidently has had its effect. Mr. Frazee has written all of the persons and told them that they can buy all of the apples they want if they will come to this city. The last letter he received was from C. R. Tryon, 1024 South East street, Indianapolis.

REFUSES PAROLES FOR RUSHVILLE MEN

Governor Marshall Paroles Twelve Prisoners But Fails to Act in Local Case.

PEA AND BUTTS MUST STAY IN

Twelve men were paroled and eleven refused paroles by Governor Marshall yesterday when he passed on the report of the State Board of Pardons, compiled at the meeting last week. The governor followed the boards recommendations in every case. Fifty-two cases which the board considered were continued.

Of the list of men paroled, four had been sentenced for perjury, two for assault and battery with intent, two for burglary, one for receiving stolen goods, one for larceny and two for petit larceny.

Among the list of paroles refused were those requested for Luther Butts and James Pea of this city. Butts was sentenced May 26, 1909, five to fourteen years, by Judge Will M. Sparks for robbery. He was convicted for stealing copper near Carthage.

James Pea was sentenced by Judge Sparks October 7, 1909 for shooting at his half-brother, Charles Eell on the Fourth of July of the same year. His sentence was suspended and he was arrested again last spring for assault and battery on Lige Pea. When he pleaded guilty to the charge he was sent to the reformatory for a period of from two to fourteen years.

GRAND JURY MAY ADJOURN TODAY

Expected That Several Affidavits Will be Returned, Mostly on Petty Charges.

SORRELL-MILER CASE FRIDAY

Motion For New Trial is Filed in the Famous Mule Case—Willard Divorce Granted.

Court circles were rather quiet today and the only thing that was looked forward to was the adjournment of the grand jury. The grand jury has been in session this week after a two weeks' lay-off and it has been a very busy week. The jurors have been busy most of the time investigating various things.

It was expected that the grand jury would make its findings tonight and adjourn. Late this afternoon such action had not been taken and it may be possible that the jury will not be able to bring its duties to a close today. In that event the jury will return tomorrow to return the affidavits. No cases of any very great interest have been up before the jury, it is said, but it is thought that several indictments will be returned. The jury has attended to all of its routine duties, including the inspection of the jail and the county poor farm.

The case of Charles Sorrell against Glen Miller for personal damages will be tried in the circuit court tomorrow. The suit is the outgrowth of a fight in front of the Grand hotel when Sorrell was thrown out of the hotel bar by Glen Miller, when Sorrell is alleged to have insulted the defendant in the case. Sorrell alleges in his complaint that he was severely injured and is unable to work as a result.

The following jury was drawn today to hear the case: William F. Moore and Bernice E. Hite of Richland township, George H. Myers and Morton P. Gray of Union, William E. Harton of Jackson, Henry Heckman of Rushville, Henry F. Prill and Claude Miller of Orange, Osmer O. McDaniel of Washington, and John F. McKee, Clarence Carney and Martin Mahan of Noble.

A motion for a new trial in the damage suit of Warren C. Lewis against William T. Hufferd, both of Arlington, was filed by the defendant in court today and will not be argued until next term. This is the famous mule case in which the jury was out for twenty-four hours. The plaintiff asked for $325 damages and was granted $112.50.

A divorce was granted to Mary A. Willard from her husband, Harry Willard, upon the payment of the costs in the case, this afternoon. The hearing lasted only a short time.

J. T. Arbuckle was appointed as a special attorney to represent the estate in the case of Frank J. Hall against Frank J. Hall, as administrator of the estate of J. P. Fairley, deceased. He was appointed also as special attorney to represent the estate in a similar case with the same plaintiff and in which the defendant is Frank J. Hall, as administrator of the estate of Lucinda A. Fairley.

At the last rehearsal of the "Old Folks Concert," which will be held in the court house assembly room tonight, the costumes will be given out to the members of the company and everything will be put in readiness for the concert which will be given Monday night at the coliseum for the benefit of the Rush County Chautauqua Association. The programs, printed on brown paper, were issued from the press today.

LORIN WRIGHT

Who Tells of an Airship That Floats Like a Bird.

WRIGHT WILL TEST NEW SHIP THIS WEEK

Latest Craft to Remain "Dead" In Air Indefinitely.

Naghead, N. C., Oct. 5.—The wildest excitement has been created here where eleven years ago the experimenting aviators were looked on as harmless imbeciles, by the amazing statement made by Lorin Wright that his brothers, Wilbur and Orville, have at last discovered the secret of the vulture's flight and will send into the clouds this week an aeroplane capable of soaring indefinitely, like a giant bird.

The elder Wright—for he is the oldest of the world famed family as well as the least known—let slip the secret when he passed through Elizabeth City on his return to Dayton, O., after spending ten days at the old experiment station near Kitty Hawk.

To intimate friends he told of the marvelous invention, but he was careful to say little of its construction; hence its mechanism is still a profound secret. While Mr. Wright did not go into details, those to whom he confided say he said the flier would be raised, propelled and maintained in the air with the minimum of power and that, like the vulture, after whose flight it is patterned, it would remain aloft with the engine "dead" so long as the air was in motion.

Flexible wings instead of stiff planes will be depended upon to maintain a balance and keep the machine in the air, where it will circle and glide at the will of the operator.

He Wants Damages.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 5.—Mantley Turpen, a contractor, has begun suit against Philip Euler, former county treasurer, for $10,000 damages. He alleges that Euler alienated the affections of Mrs. Turpen.

GREED REBUKED IN INDIANAPOLIS

Mayor Shank Teaches Commission Men a Lesson.

GOES INTO POTATO BUSINESS

So Well Received Was the Mayor's Experiment in Opening Up a Market Direct With the Consumer That He Has Decided to Enlarge on His Original Plan—Co-operative Associations to Beat the Greedy Middle Man.

Indianapolis, Oct. 5.—Another carload of potatoes has been brought to the city by Mayor Shank and these are being delivered to persons who placed orders with the mayor last Saturday when a carload of potatoes was sold in the city market at cost to break the commission merchants' combine. There were only 420 bushels of potatoes in the first car bought, and the mayor had orders for 615 bushels.

The potatoes were bought from a Wisconsin firm which consigned the car to a local commission house only to have the shipment rejected on the theory that the potatoes were long instead of round in shape. The mayor looked at the potatoes, said they were of excellent quality and bought them at 67 cents a bushel.

The mayor expects to receive another carload of potatoes in a few days. He is receiving hundreds of letters from all over the United States relative to his effort to show up the commission merchants. The idea of a co-operative association among the employees of the Pennsylvania railroad shops is gaining headway and the promoters now expect to have 300 members.

Coal, potatoes, canned goods and real necessities of the working men will be bought in bulk from the manufacturers direct. The goods will not be stored. If fifty men want 200 tons of coal, 200 tons of coal will be bought and sold directly to the men at cost. If canned corn is desired by a bunch of members, the same method will be adopted.

HE GOT AWAY

Aged Magistrate Gave Burglar a Hard Tussle, However.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 5.—Stepping on a burglar crouching in his bedroom, Justice J. N. Calvert, aged sixty-five, engaged in a hand-to-hand fight with him and finally threw the burglar headlong downstairs. The burglar then escaped by jumping through a window.

Mr. Calvert was awakened during the night by noises in the house, but found no one. His wife then suggested he look under the bed. As he turned to do so he stepped on the man's foot, which protruded from under the bed. After throwing the intruder downstairs Calvert dressed and started in pursuit, but the burglar escaped.

Ho Wouldn't Work.

Mt. Vernon, Ind., Oct. 5.—Mayor Moeller has started a new system of punishment for city prisoners who refuse to work. William Saxton refused to work on the streets, and Mayor Moeller ordered his ankle adorned with a twenty-five pound ball and chain and turned him over to a policeman with instructions to parade him through the principal business streets until he decided to work.

Afraid to Bury Dead.

Brazil, Ind., Oct. 5.—The county health authorities report a serious epidemic of diphtheria in the vicinity of Croys creek, southeast of Harmony, this county. Several deaths have occurred in this neighborhood recently. The fear of the disease is so great that in several instances the families of the afflicted have been unable to obtain help at the burial of diphtheria victims.

Cars Make Too Much Noise.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 5.—Ministers of this city, protesting against noisy streetcars which interrupt their sermons and dissuade people from attending because of their inability to hear what is said, have appointed a committee to interview the car company and urge the abandonment of rickety and flat-wheeled cars.

Warned of Their Danger.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 5.—Twenty men have been sent forward from Terre Haute as strike breakers on the Harriman lines. The man who came here to employ them says each man was fully informed of what he was expected to do and the possible dangers he would encounter.

Had Premonition of Death.

Boonville, Ind., Oct. 5.—While cutting timber on his farm near Degonia, this county, Frank Barton was crushed to death by a falling tree. Just before starting to his work Barton told his friends of dreading he was going to be killed. His death came a half hour later.

Result of Religious Revival.

Morristown, Ind., Oct. 5.—Following a two weeks' religious revival here, slot machines have been ordered out of town and an organization is being formed to drive out blind tigers.

THE PRESIDENT ENJOYED RACES

"Frontier Day" at Cheyenne an Interesting Feature.

VARIED ROUTINE OF HIS TRIP

Broncho Busting, Wild Horse Racing, Cowgirl Races and the Like Gave the President a Touch of "Wild West" That Apparently He Enjoyed, For Ever and Anon His Laugh Rang Out Over the Holiday Crowd.

Rawlins, Wyo., Oct. 5.—At Cheyenne President Taft faced a Wyoming "frontier day" show and heard the crowd shout "Fan 'im, fan 'im" to the broncho busters as they swept their sombreros before the eyes of the infuriated animals.

Mr. Taft's stay in Wyoming was too limited to permit of a very pretentious wild west show, but what the cowboys lacked in time they made up for in variety. First they gave the president a wild horse race. They started three ex-champions of the world in the broncho busting line in the race. There were nine horses in all entered in the event and one horse finished. By and by another bucked in second, but the lack of time forced them to scratch the rest of the entries and leave them kicking the alkali at various places around the track.

The starter announced with pride that one of the horses had been ridden the whole way around the track. While he was talking the second horse came under the wire still bucking. He accorded him second place and, looking at his watch, shouted to the crowd that the time was very fast.

The first bad horse they brought out for the busters was named "Billy Taft." It took him just a hundred feet of going to send his rider into the dust. The next one was announced as "that celebrated outlaw, Archie Butt." The gold lace of the president's A. D. C. crowded to the front of the stand to see the performance of his namesake. The horse proved to be the most aptly named brute in the world. When it came to bucking he was as polite as a Georgia gentleman and the crowd hooted him down the track as he quit bucking at the first taste of the spurs and began to run for dear life.

Then Clayton Danks, who once carried off the palm as the best broncho buster in the world, attempted the very difficult feat of riding "Schedule K." That was a mean horse that bucked at every buck, but Danks stuck to him until he nearly rolled him. "Teddy Roosevelt" was the trickiest horse in the outfit. He would not buck. He "sunfished," that is, he whirled round and round until his rider fell from his neck, blinded with dizziness. "Prairie Rose," a cowgirl, rode "GinFizz," and she gave a wonderful exhibition of horsemanship before some of the cowboys got to her horse and roped him. Next to Archie Butt the easiest broncho was "Reciprocity."

They had a couple of cowgirl races and then they brought on a herd of bucking steers. The cowboy that had stuck to the bronchos could not sit some of the cows. There was one heifer that threw a man four times. They brought out some bucking burros and put the kids on them. Only one boy could stick to his animal. It was great fun for the president. It was the first real let-up from a round of routine that he has had in many a day and his laugh rang out over the crowd.

THEN KILLED HIMSELF

But Not Before He Had Made Will and Shot Sweetheart.

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 5.—"If I die and Madeline lives I hereby bequeath her my entire estate, on condition that she enter a convent and never marry."

This is the will of Erskine S. Walker, found in an envelope addressed to the parents of Madeline Komp. Shortly after it was mailed, Walker shot the girl and killed himself. Doctors say there is a chance the girl may recover.

The shooting was the result of the girl's parents' objections to an immediate marriage. The girl is only sixteen years old. When she refused to disobey her parents and wed at once Walker shot her, then himself. A provision of the will gives the girl $3,000 if she marries. Walker's estate is valued at $10,000.

The Bleachers Collapsed.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 5.—Two sections of the bleachers at the racetrack in the Illinois state fair grounds collapsed, hurling the 500 occupants of the seats to the ground in an indiscriminate mass. Ten persons were seriously injured.

Driven to Death by Ill Health.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 5.—Frederick Olander, ex-city alderman and ex-county treasurer, was found dead in one of the cottages at the Upper Beach. It is thought that Mr. Olander committed suicide by shooting because of ill health.

Tragedy of the Channel.

London, Oct. 5.—The British steamer Hatfield was in collision with the British steamer Glasgow and sunk. All the members of the Hatfield's crew, numbering about twenty men, were drowned.

NOT MUCH SPENT TO PREVENT FIRES

Indiana Pays no Heed to Means to Stop Large Expenditure Each Year.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY, OCT. 9

Thousands of Dollars Are Expended to Extinguish Blazes That Are Preventable.

Present indications are that the fire losses in the United States and Canada for 1911 will exceed $260,000,000. The figures for the first seven months of the year show a total of $154,992,900 as compared with $126,076,800, during the same period last year.

This tremendous loss of property is challenging the attention of business men all over the country and is the chief motive for the present agitation in Indiana now being conducted by the commercial organizations of the state headed by the Indianapolis Trade Association. The proposal to observe Monday, October 9 as State Fire Prevention Day is merely a preliminary step to a continued educational campaign to arouse the general public to the need to study the question of fire prevention.

The fire losses in 1910 were $234,406,650 and if the present ratio of increase continues through the next three months the 1911 losses may approach $3,000,000. This will exceed any year in the history of the country except those of the San Francisco and the Baltimore conflagrations.

Government officials and students of the fire prevention problem agree that the majority of the fires are due to carelessness and are easily preventable. All of the recent fires which have attracted public attention because of the heavy loss of life with which they were accompanied were due to carelessness and indifference of owners, occupants or municipal authorities.

New York has been spending $10,000,000 a year for fire extinguishment and only $10,000 for fire prevention. Indiana is spending practically nothing for fire prevention but every city and town and hamlet is paying an immense amount to extinguish fires that might have been prevented at much less expense.

The tremendous fire losses are draining the resources of the country and weakening its insurance capital. A score of fire insurance companies have retired from the field already this year, because of the heavy losses last year and the unfavorable outlook, two of the number being companies over a hundred years old.

The promotion of insurance capital to insurance liabilities is very much on the decrease. In the past forty years the liabilities have almost doubled while only $6,000,000 more capital was invested in the business in 1910 than in 1870.

Not the Newspapers.

At the meeting last night between the city council and the representative body of men appointed by the Merchants Association, Councilman Parsons in the course of his remarks accused the newspapers of this city of moulding public sentiment against the council in the stand taken on admitting the factory and giving water for fire protection. The doctor is right, but more wrong than right. The people are against the council. The papers of this city did not have to use any influence on the public to make it see that the council was wrong. The public, not the papers, demand that this factory be given fire protection. It was told the council last night that if the question was left to the people of Rushville, ninety per cent would vote to give the new industry the fire protection it so rightly deserves. When a majority of the people demand a thing they should have it, and the council should recognize this fact.

retary State on Republican ticket, 1912; Elam E. Neal, collector international revenue; Elmer E. Bassett, Shelbyville, member State central committee of Sixth district; Edgar H. Schmidt, United States marshal. Word is being received daily from Republicans in the four corners of the State to the effect that they are all coming. Delegations will come from points in the State as far distant as Terre Haute and Evansville, according to word received by James E. Watson this morning. A letter was received this morning that fifty Republicans would come from Terre Haute.

An effort is being made to obtain a special train over the L. E. & W. from New Castle. James E. Watson was notified this morning that an attempt was being made to have the excursion train start at Muncie and gather up the crowds all along the line between here and that city. It is estimated that five hundred would come on that excursion and there is every reason to believe that it will be arranged.

Miles K. Moffett called over the long distance telephone this morning to notify the committee that a delegation of probably five hundred from Connersville and Fayette county could be expected. He said that the love feast here was the chief topic of conversation among the Republicans there and that most of them were making preparations to come.

James E. Watson was informed yesterday evening that a delegation of at least five hundred, and possibly more, would come down here for the love feast on I. & C. special cars from Indianapolis. Delegations are being made up in the Marion and Columbia clubs while many other prominent Republicans are making preparations to attend.

The Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company has been notified of the crowds that are expected to be here that evening as well as in the day time and every effort will be made by the company to supply cars enough to care for the crowds conveniently.

Greensburg Republicans have sent word here that a delegation of at least four hundred might be expected from there. It is understood that the crowd from Shelbyville will be even larger than that and that there have been some rumors of a special train running from that city. Columbus will send a delegation, according to the news received here, as will all other cities in Central Indiana.

The special car on the Indianapolis & Cincinnati traction line will carry the vice-president, Senator Kern and the members of the reception committee to this city and will stop ten minutes in Morristown, according to arrangements made with Mr. Watson. The vice-president and Senator Kern will each speak five minutes and Morristown is planning a celebration. The school children will march to the depot there and make a demonstration.

Arrangements were made this morning for O. E. Hume to have charge of the automobiles which will meet the special car here and carry the members of the party to James E. Watson's home where the members will be entertained at a light luncheon.

T. M. Green was appointed at the committee meeting to attend to renting the coliseum for the smoker which was done later today.

Plans as to how the noted Republicans of the State shall be entertained at dinner in the evening are unsettled as yet. It was first thought that the guests would be assigned to various homes in this city, but another plan has been devised which may be carried out. It is in the embryo, as yet, however.

It was reported at the committee meeting that Republican editors and newspaper correspondents from over the State will be here for the smoker. A special effort will be made to entertain the visiting editors royally. Prominent among the editors who will be here are George B. Lockwood of the Marion Chronicle; Robert A. Brown of the Frankfort News; W. H. Elliott of the New Castle Courier; James Caskey of the Greensburg News; Tom Elrod of the Columbus Republican; A. M. Willoughby of the Greensburg Review; Edwin W. Tatman of the Connersville News and numerous others.

The Palace has for tonight a Kalem comedy, "Making Mother Over" and a Melies drama, "Bessie's Ride." The last is a western picture and is a sensational film.

The Portola program for tonight includes a Lubin film and a Pathe. The Lubin, "During Cherry Time" is a comedy-drama that is said to be a very novel picture. The Pathe is entitled "The Sheriff's Punishment" and is a thrilling western picture.

SOCIETY NEWS

—Mrs. Robert Tompkins entertained the Bridge club this afternoon at her home in East Seventh street.

Miss Elizabeth Moran, daughter of Mrs. Patrick Moran of 730 North Willow street, and John Conroy, were married at the Catholic church by the Rev. W. J. Cronin last evening. Mr. and Mrs. Conroy went to their home, which was already furnished, in East Ninth street, immediately after the ceremony. Mr. Conroy is proprietor of the Conroy restaurant in Main street.

The wedding of Miss Pearl Marlatt, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. A. N. Marlatt of Connersville and Paul Peter Willis, son of the Rev. and Mrs. T. H. Willis of Vincennes, Ind., both of the young people being well known here, will take place at the home of Miss Marlatt in Connersville Wednesday, October 18. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Mr. Willis. Miss Marlatt is the sister of Mrs. J. H. Scholl of North Jackson street.

Approximately one hundred and fifty people were present at the meeting of the Christian Women's Board of Missions, held in honor of the men who are members, in the basement of the Main Street Christian church last evening. A supper was served and good things to eat abounded. Each member of the society furnished something toward the meal. The work was in charge of the tenth division, of which Mrs. Lewis M. Clark is captain and Mrs. Will Jay is assistant. Much credit for the success of the banquet is due the captain and her assistant.

Mrs. Anna R. Atwater of Indianapolis, national president of the C. W. B. M., was the guest of honor and made a brief address. Miss Lena Gilbert of Indianapolis was also a guest. Miss Florence Frazee furnished special music for the occasion.

The most elaborate and again the most charming wedding that has been held in Rushville in recent months was that at the United Presbyterian church last evening when Miss Orma Archer Innis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Innis of 621 North Harrison street, and J. Chester Smith of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Smith of Monmouth, Illinois, were married. The ceremony was performed promptly at seven-thirty o'clock by the Rev. E. H. Pence of Detroit, Michigan, an uncle of the bride.

As the guests gathered in the church Miss Martha Hogsett played Gounod's "Ave Marie" on the pipe organ. Shortly before the wedding party entered the church Mrs. Neal McClanahan of Cairo, Egypt, sister of the bridegroom, sang "O Perfect Love," accompanied by Miss Hogsett on the organ.

After the first few notes of the wedding march had been sounded the wedding party entered from the west entrance to the church auditorium. The party was led by the bridesmaids, the Misses Ruth Innis, sister of the bride and Aileen Budd. The maid of honor, Miss Elsa Porter of Reinbeck, Iowa, followed and next came the bride and her father, Robert L. Innis. The bride groom and his brother, Glen Smith of Monmouth, Illinois, the best man, entered from the east door to the auditorium and met the bridal procession at the altar.

The ceremony consumed about ten minutes, the ring service being used. The bride was given away by her father. The bridal party went out the south entrance of the church through the canvas canopy to the Innis home where the reception was held.

The bride's gown was of white satin, trimmed in Italian galloon, and she carried a formal nosegay bouquet of maidenhair fern, lilies of the valley, snapdragons and white roses. The maid of honor, Miss Porter, wore a dress of lavender marquisette and carried in her arm a shower bouquet of lavender orchids and maidenhair fern. The bridesmaids wore simple pink chiffon dresses and carried French baskets of pink snapdragons. The bride's going-away gown was a brown tailored suit.

The reception at the Innis home following the ceremony was informal and was attended by about sixty guests, mostly immediate relatives and friends of the family and guests from out of the city. Montani's orchestra of Indianapolis played at the reception. One hundred invited guests witnessed the ceremony in the church.

The church auditorium which accommodated the wedding guests nicely, was beautifully decorated in pink and white, the wedding colors, and set off with greenery to good advantage. The organist and soloist were hidden behind a bank of ferns and palms which formed the altar. Just in front of the mass of greenery were large and artistic bunches of chrysanthemums, just in front of which the ceremony was performed. Bouquets of white lilies on stands were placed around the auditorium and greenery was used to great advantage in taking away the vacants of the windows and balconies. The electric lights were enclosed in imitation pink roses and they gave out a soft and mellow light.

The decorations in the house were very simple. The parlor was very neatly arranged with asparagus and palms while pink roses predominated. The orchestra was hidden behind a bank of palms in the spacious hallway. White roses were most apparent in the dining room. They were use promiscuously to good effect. The dining table was literally covered with them. The bridal party was served at the table while the guests were seated about the dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left last evening for Oklahoma City, where their home is already furnished.

The guests from a distance included Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Smith, parents of the bridegroom, and two sons, Glen and Walter of Monmouth, Illinois; Mrs. Neal McClanahan, sister of the bridegroom, of Cairo, Egypt; the Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Pence of Detroit, Michigan; Mrs. Anna Archer of Peoria, Illinois; Mrs. Isadore Kessler of Peru, Illinois; Presley Gibbon and daughter, Miss Gladys of Frankfort, Indiana; Prof. and Mrs. A. F. Stewart of Monmouth, Illinois; the Rev. and Mrs. W. H.

Clark of Connersville; Miss Lillian Righter and Howard Henley of Carthage and Miss Elsa Porter of Reinbeck, Iowa.

The son of old Dan Blair said earnestly: "I'm darned glad you did—I'm darned glad you did!"

Letty Lane nodded. "So am I. But," with some sharpness, "I don't see why you speak that way. I've earned my way. I made a fortune for Roach all right."

"You mean the man you married?" "Married—goodness gracious, what made you think that?" She threw back her pretty head and laughed—a laugh with the least possible merriment in it. "Oh, heavens, marry old Job Roach! So they say that, do they? I never heard that. I hear a lot, but I never heard that fairy tale." She put her hands to her cheeks, which had grown crimson. "That's not true!"

Dan swore at himself for his tactless stupidity.

Ruggles had heard both sides. She was adored by the poor, and, as far as rumor knew, she spent thousands on the London paupers, and the West-erner, who had never been given to reveling in scandals and to whom there was something wicked in speaking ill of a woman, no matter whom she might be, listened with embarrassment to tales he had been told in answer to his other questions; and turned with relief to the stories of Letty Lane's charity, and to the stories of her popularity and her success. They were more agreeable, but they couldn't make him forget the rest, and now as he looked at her face across the bouquet of orchids and ferns, it was with a sinking of heart, a great pity for her, and still a decided enmity. He disapproved of her down to the ground. He didn't let himself think how he felt, but it was for the boy. Ruggles was not a man of the world in any sense; he was simple and Puritan in his judgments, and his gentle nature and his big heart kept him from pharisaical and strenuous measures. He had been led in what he was doing tonight by a diplomacy and a common sense that few men east of the Mississippi would have thought out under the circumstances.

"Tell Mr. Ruggles," he heard Dan say to her, "tell him—tell him!"

And she answered: "I was telling Mr. Blair that, as he is so frightfully rich, I want him to give me some money."

Ruggles gasped, but answered quietly:

"Well, he's a great giver, Miss Lane."

"I guess he is if he's like his fa-

CONFIDENCE

We Back up Our Statement With Our Personal Reputation and Money.

We are so positive that we can relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine free of all cost if we fail.

We think that it is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Cathartics may do much harm. They may cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels, and make constipation more chronic.

Constipation is often accompanied and may be used by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestines or colon. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those parts and restore them to healthier activity.

The discovery of the active principle of our remedy involved the labor of skillful research chemists. This remedy produces results such as are expected from the best of the best-known intestinal tonics, and its particularly prompt in its results.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are exceedingly pleasant to take and are ideal for children. They apparently act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels, having, it would seem, a neutral action on other organs or glands. They do not purge or cause inconvenience. If they do not positively cure chronic or habitual constipation and thus relieve the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, your money will be refunded. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Three sizes of packages, 25c., 50c., and 75c. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store, Lytle's Drug Store, Corner Main and Third streets.

ther!" she returned. "I am trying to get a lot, though, out of him, and when you asked me to dine tonight I said to myself, 'I'll accept, for it will be a good time to ask Mr. Blair to help me out in what I want to do.'"

At Ruggles' face she smiled sweetly and said graciously:

"Oh, don't think I wouldn't have come anyway. But I'm awfully tired these days, and going out to supper is just one thing too much to do! I want Mr. Blair," she said, turning to Ruggles as if she knew a word from him would make the thing go through, "to help me build a rest home down on the English coast, for girls who get discouraged in their art. When I think of the luck I have had and how these things have been from the beginning, and how money has just poured in, why," she said ardently, "it just makes my heart ache to think of the girls who try and fail, who go on for a little while and have to give up. You can't tell"—she nodded to Ruggles, as though she were herself a matron of forty—"you can not tell what their temptations are or what comes up to make them go to pieces."

Ruggles listened with interest.

"I haven't thought it all out yet, but so many come to me tired out and discouraged, and I think a nice home taken care of by a good creature like my Higgins, let us say, would be a perfect blessing to them. They could go there and rest and study and just think, and perhaps," she said slowly, as though while she spoke she saw a vision of a tired self, for whom there had been no rest home and no place of retreat, "perhaps a lot of them would pull through in a different way. Now today"—she broke her meditative tone short—"I got a letter from a hospital where a poor thing that used to sing with me in New York was dying with consumption—all gone to pieces and discouraged, and there is where your primroses went to—"

she nodded to Dan. "Higgins took them. You don't mind?" And Blair, with a warmth in his voice, touched by her pity more than by her charity, said:

"Why, they grew for you, Miss Lane; I don't care what you do with them."

Letty Lane sank her head on her hands, her elbows leaned on the table. She seemed suddenly to have lost interest even in her topic. She looked around the room indifferently. The orchestra was softly playing "The Dove Song" from "Mandalay," and very softly under her breath the star hummed it, her eyes vaguely fixed on some unknown scene. To Dan and to Ruggles she had grown strange. The music, her brilliancy, her sudden indifference, put her out of their commonplace reach. Ruggles to himself thought with relief:

"She doesn't care one rap for the boy anyway, thank God. She's got other fish to land."

And Dan Blair thought: "It's my infernal money again." But he was generous at heart and glad to be of service to her, and was perfectly willing to be "touched" for her poor. Then two or three men came up and joined them. She greeted them indolently, bestowing a word or look on this one or on that; all fire and light seemed to have gone out of her, and Dan said:

"You are tired. I guess I had better take you home."

She did not appear to hear him. Indeed she was not looking at him, and Dan saw Prince Poniatowsky making his way toward their table across the room.

Letty Lane rose. Dan put her cloak about her shoulders, and glancing toward Ruggles and toward the boy as indifferently as she had considered the new-comers, who formed a small group around the brilliant figure of the actress, she nodded good night to both Ruggles and Blair and went up to the Hungarian as though he were her husband, who had come to take her home. However, at the door she sufficiently shook off her mood to smile slightly at Dan.

"I have had lots of fun, and the Scotch broth was great! Thank you both so much."

Until they were up in their sitting-room her hosts did not exchange a word. Then Ruggles took a book up from the table and sat down with his cigar. "I am going to read a little Dan. Slept all day; feel as wide-awake as an owl."

Dan showed no desire to be communicative, however, to Ruggles' disappointment, but he exclaimed abruptly:

"I'll be darned, Ruggles, if I can guess what you asked her for!"

"Well, it did turn out to be a pretty expensive party for you, Dannie, didn't it?" Ruggles returned humorously. "I'll let you off from any more supper parties."

And Dan fumed as he turned his back. "Expensive! There you are again, Ruggles, with your infernal intrusion of money into everything I do."

When the older man found himself alone, he read a little and then put his book down to muse. And his meditations were on the tide of life and the beds it runs over; the living whirlpool as Ruggles himself had seen it coursing through London under fog and mist. It seemed now to surge up in the dark to his very windows, and the flow mysteriously passed under his windows in these silent hours over which the waters go. Out of the sound, as it flowed on, the cries rose, he thought, kindly to his ears: "God bless her—God bless Letty Lane!" And with this sound he closed his meditations, thinking of a more peaceful stream, the brighter, sweeter waters of the boy's nature, translucent and clear. The vision was happier, and with it Ruggles rose and yawned, and shut his book.

CHAPTER XII.

The Green Knight.

The Duchess of Breakwater had made Dan promise at Osdena the day he went back to London that he would take her over to her own place, Stainer Court, and with her see the beauty, ruins and traditions of the place.

When Dan got up well on in the morning, Ruggles had gone to the bank. Dan's thoughts turned from everything to Letty Lane. With irritation he put her out of his mind.

There had come up between himself and the girl he had known slightly in his own town two years ago a wall of partition. Every time he saw her Poniatowsky was there, condescending, arrogant, rude and proud. The prince the night before had given the tips of his fingers to Dan, nodded to Ruggles as if the Westerner had been his tailor, and had appropriated Letty Lane, and she had gone away under his shadow. The simplicity of Dan's life, his decent bringing up, his immaculate youth, for such it was, his aloofness from the world, made him naive, but he was not dull. He waited—not like a skeptic who would fit every one into his pigeonholes—on the contrary, he waited to find every one as perfect as he knew they must be, and every time he tried to think of Letty Lane, Poniatowsky troubled him horribly and seemed to rise before him, and sardonically look at him through his eye-glass, making the boy's belief in good things ridiculous.

He wrote a note to Ruggles, saying that he would be back late and not to wait for him, and set out in his own car for Blankshire, where the duchess was to meet him at Stainer Court at noon. On his way out he decided that he had been a fool to discuss Letty Lane with the Duchess of Breakwater, and that it had been none of his business to put her duty before her, and that he had judged her quickly and unfairly. He felt in love with the lovely English country over which his motor took him, and it made him more affectionate toward the English woman. He sat back in his car, looking over the fine shooting land, the misty golden forests, as through the misty country his motor took its way.

The breath of England was on his cheeks, he breathed in its odors fresh and sweet, the wildness air was cool and fragrant. His cheeks grew red, his eyes shone like stars, and he was content with his youth and his lot. When they stopped at Castlen, the property belonging to Stainer Court, he felt something of proprietorship stir in him, and at Stainer Arms ordered a drink, bought petroleum, and then pushed up the avenue under the leafless giant trees, whose roots were older than his father's name or than any state of the Union. And he felt admiration and something like emotion as he saw the first towers of Stainer Court finally appear.

The duchess waited for him in the room known as the "Green Knight's Room," because of a figure in tapestry on the walls. The legend in wool had been woven in Spain, somewhere about the time when Isabelle was kind, and when in turn a continent loomed up for the world in general out of the mist. The subject of the Green Knight's tapestry was simple and convincing. On a sheer-cut village of low ferns, where daisies stood up like trees, a slender lady poised her dark sandaled feet on the pin-like turf. Her figure was all swathed round with a spotless dress of woolly white, softened by age into a golden misty tone, and a pair of friendly and confidential rabbits sat close to her golden slippers. The lady's face was candid and mild; her eyes were soft, and around her head was wound a fillet of woven threads, mellow in tone, a red, no doubt, originally, but softened to a coral pink by time. This lady in all her grace and virginal sweetness was only half of the woven story. To her right stood a youth in forest green, his sword drawn, and his intention evidently to kill a creature which, near to the gentle rabbits, out of the daisied grass lifted its cruel snakelike head. For nearly five hundred years the serpent's venom had been poised, and if the serpent should start the Green Knight would strike, too, at the same magic moment.

Close to the tapestry a fire had been laid in the broad fireplace, and the duchess had ordered the luncheon table for Dan and herself spread with the cold things England knows how to combine into a delectable feast. The room was full of mediaeval furnishings, but the Green Knight was the best of all. The Duchess of Breakwater took him for granted. She had known him all her life, and she had only been struck by his expensive beauty when the offer came to her from the National Museum to buy him, and she wondered how long she could afford to stick to her price.

When Dan came in he found her in a short tweed skirt, a mannish blouse, looking boyish and wholly charming, and she mixed him a cocktail under the Green Knight's very nose and offered it with the wisdom of the serpent itself, and the duchess didn't in the least suggest the white-robed, milk-white lady.

The friends drank their cocktails in good spirits, and Dan presented the lady with the flowers he had brought her, and he felt a strong sentiment stir at the sight of her in this old room, alone and waiting for him. The servants left them, the duchess put her hands on the boy's broad shoulders. Nearly as tall as he, she was a good example of the best-looking English woman, straight and strong, and her eyes were level, and Dan met them with his own.

"I am so glad you came," she murmured. "I've been ragging myself every minute since you went away from Osdena."

"You have? What for?"

"Because I was such a perfect prig. I'll do anything you like for Miss Lane. I mean to say, I'll arrange for a musicale and ask her to sing."

The color rushed into Dan's face. How bully of her! What a brick this showed her to be! He said: "You are as sweet as a peach!"

The duchess' hands were still on his shoulders. She could feel his rapid breath.

"I don't make you think of a box of candy now?" she murmured, and the boy covered her hand with his own.

"I don't know what you make me think of—it is bully, whatever it is!"

If the Spanish tapestry could only have reversed its idea, and if the immaculate lady, or even one of the rabbits, could have drawn a sword to protect the Green Knight, it would have been passing well. But the woven work, when it first had been embroidered, was done for ever; it was irrevocable in its mistaken idea, that it is only the woman who needs protection!

Feet Tired—So Tired?

TIZ Makes Sick Feet Well No Matter What Ails Them.

TIZ acts at once and makes tired, aching, swollen feet remarkably fresh and sore proof.

It's a sure remedy, you know, for everything that ails the matter with your feet. It's for sore feet and for sweaty, bad-smelling feet, and for corns, callouses and bunions, too.

"For years I have been troubled with sore and tender feet; suffered intense pains. Have had the assistance of physicians without relief. I bought a box of TIZ, which worked a perfect cure, as it has with a great many of my friends. I would not be without it. All it requires is to be known to be universally used." A. F. Dreyer, Chicago.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all drug stores, 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you direct if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

AN INTERRUPTED TALE OF BATTLE

Vell of Silence Still Hangs
Over Tripoli.

THE CABLE IS NOT WORKING

An Italian Correspondent Started a Story of the Bombardment of Tripoli, but Had to Cut It Short While the Battle Was Raging in Order to Dispatch It With a Departing Torpedo Boat.

Paris, Oct. 5.—Tripoli news is meager, as the cable is not working. This campaign constitutes a record on account of the lack of bloodshed. The Italians shout hurrah and the Turks run away. The historical Matanzas donkey has taken a back seat since the Tripoli bombardment, where the Italian fleet is said to have landed a shell in a poultry yard. The feathered tribe cackled and ran, but were caught by hungry Turkish troopers.

Rome, Oct. 5.—From an Italian correspondent the following dispatch has been received: "On board the cruiser Costit, Tuesday.—Further delay granted by the Italian government was concluded at 2 p. m. The commander of the forces at Tripoli at that hour refused to surrender and Admiral Faravelli, commanding the Italian squad, now instructed the commanders of the vessels to bombard the fortresses of Tripoli. The officers of the consulates, having been warned that fighting was about to break out, hoisted their flags high in order properly to protect the lives of Europeans."

"Then the Italian warship drew up before the port of Tripoli in a short distance of one another. The enthusiasm in the fleet increases as it approaches the city. Every man is in his place and ready to fire. The general movement is vague. A noise of universal bustle runs along the warships. On board the ships everybody is silent. The moment is a solemn one. The order is transmitted from mouth to mouth and from ship to ship."

"Suddenly all the battleships, cruisers, destroyers and transports hoist their colors. The vessels come into line with singular and marvelous majesty. The summons of surrender is repeated, but the appeal is not crowned with success and the warships hurl their first projectiles against the batteries of Tripoli. Shot after shot is sent ashore with regularity and precision. The Turks attempt to reply with their guns, but their shells don't even reach the Italian vessels. They fall short and drop into the sea. We cannot describe these last phases of the bombardment, as we must hand these pages to the commander of a torpedo boat that is this instant leaving for Malta."

No details have arrived of the landing of the Italians.

Jeffersonville Puts a Ban on the Gretna Green Business.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Oct. 5.—"The marrying squire" of Jeffersonville, which has enjoyed the distinction of being the Gretna Green of probably 1,000 Kentuckians every year for a generation, are sorely troubled. The city council has passed an ordinance providing severe penalties for the employment of runners in soliciting patronage or for the displaying of misleading signs respecting marriage licenses. Electric cars and a ferry provide 5 cents transportation from Louisville, whence comes most of the "trade."

Then He Killed Himself.
Mt. Carmel, Ill., Oct. 5.—Because fellow boarders taunted him and said he was stuck up because he washed in his room instead of in the kitchen of the boarding house, Alexander Kaufke, aged twenty-two years, shot William Mafeski in the stomach, inflicting a wound that may prove mortal. He then ran to his room and when the police came shot and killed himself.

Heavy Damage to Crops.
Williamstown, Ky., Oct. 5.—The bottom lands along Eagle creek were swept by a flood of water which rolled in from the headwaters of the stream, and nearly every acre of corn and tobacco planted on the bottom lands has been destroyed.

STATE TO MAKE A THOROUGH INQUIRY

Criminal Prosecution May Follow Austin Inquest.

Austin, Pa., Oct. 5.—In the possession of the state authorities there is evidence that for nearly two years before it burst last Saturday the Bayless dam was a constant menace to the towns of Austin and Costello, the ruins of which are still strewn over five miles of the Sinnemahoning valley. Following the departure of Governor Tener from Austin, after he had made a personal inspection of the broken dam and of the scenes of devastation stretching far below, it was learned that criminal prosecution may develop from the testimony that will be presented at the inquest.

"There will be a thorough investigation made by the state of the causes leading up to the collapse of the dam," Governor Tener said, after he had looked over the great sections of shattered concrete wall that are all that are left of the Bayless dam. "The state of Pennsylvania will see that justice is done to these poor people who have lost their dear ones and their homes."

Six more bodies have been recovered, making a total of forty-four that have so far been dragged from the ruins. The men who have taken a complete census of survivors and missing have placed the original number of missing at seventy-five, according to their figures, with forty-four bodies already released, not more than thirty-one more are scattered through the debris. Some of the bodies may never be recovered, having either been burned to a crisp or buried under tons of mud and refuse.

How He Ended It.
Evansville, Ind., Oct. 5.—After a quarrel with his wife John Newton, thirty years old, remarked he "would end it all," and, picking up a pistol, shot himself, dying in a few seconds.

valuation of $26,450. You paid $14,000 for the land, giving you $12,450 profit—all for the sake of the factory.

"The way to straighten this out is to see the fellows who own these lots and see what additional they would give if their lots were made 30 feet longer. The only way to correct a mistake is by going back to the start. You too gentlemen want the factory to be boosted, now you have a chance to boost for yourselves."

Councilman Parsons was told by Messrs. Stewart and Tompkins that the lots were owned by 115 men and they could not do anything. He was told that they desired the factory to be taken into the city regardless of the rest of the addition. Dr. Parsons objected to taking in the factory and not the whole addition. His argument was that in the course of time many houses would be erected there and it would not be fair to these people to give the factory fire protection and leave the others out. "I shall vote against taking in the factory without taking in all of the addition," declared Dr. Parsons in closing.

After Dr. Parsons had concluded his remarks the vote was taken on the question before the council and they went in session as a committee of the whole. The session lasted about an hour and a half and it is understood that the question was discussed from all angles. It is said that one suggestion was for the owners of the 115 lots to present a petition to the council giving their consent to the factory having water and not the whole addition. Another plan under consideration was for the factory to build its own water mains from the corner of Perkins and Eleventh streets to the factory.

The special meeting Friday night should be a busy one as the Perkins street paving question and factory problem will be decided.

he believed if the question of fire protection was left to the people of Rushville ninety per cent would vote in favor of it. Robert Tompkins told the council that the factory people were willing to have the factory taken into the city as the city could not give them water as they are situated at present.

Councilman Newhouse moved that the council go into session as a committee of the whole and consider the matter. The motion was seconded, but before put to a vote Dr. Parsons said perhaps the citizens committee would like to hear from the members of the council and proceed to elucidate.

Councilman Parsons said that when an addition asked for admission to the city it was necessary according to the law to present a plat of the addition to the council. He stated that this was not done and exhibited a plat of the Stewart and Tompkins addition to Belmont that he had borrowed from Mr. Stewart. Dr. Parsons stated that if their addition was straightened out the streets would have no dead ends as they ran into alleys in Belmont and the jog in the streets would be there and not in Rushville.

"I want you gentlemen to look up on me as a councilman doing his duty and not as a citizen and what I say as coming from a councilman," said Dr. Parsons. "The council has kept still on this matter and public sentiment has been against us because of the newspapers, who have misrepresented this thing. The promoters of the lot sale argue that other streets of the city should be straightened out and I say to you this is the best argument in the world why this addition should be made to conform. The men who platted this addition did wrong. If you had platted it like Rushville instead of Belmont you would have had seven lots instead of nine in width."

Continuing he said, "Now you say this can not be changed and I say it can and will show you how. The way to do it is for everyone to work for the thing and not against it. On the east of the addition you have sold 27 too many lots. Now buy these and put 30 feet on each of the other lots. The owners of these lots would surely give more money for a full sized city lot and thus make the addition conform to the city. You talk of wanting the council to do something for Rushville, now here is your chance if you want something done. Someone will have to make a sacrifice. Who shall it be? It kills the spirit of the law if the council is allowed to be walked over."

Addressing his remarks to Robert L. Tompkins and Lon Stewart, Dr. Parsons said: "The man that makes the mistake is the one to correct it. You made this mistake and it is up to you to right it. To show that you are able to do it, I will show how much you men made on the lot sale. You say the lot sale brought you $17,000, and you reserved nine of the best lots on Main street which you value at $900 each. The factory site you value at $4,000, making a total
